

WEBINAR

The Planning White Paper: what will it mean in practice for developers and site promoters?

Keating Chambers and Pegasus Group invite you to this webinar to explore the practical implications of the proposed reforms in the recent White Paper, Planning for the Future, including in particular the new opportunities and risks it presents for developers and site promoters.

There will be a question and answer session at the end of the webinar and you are able to post questions online throughout.

THURSDAY 29TH OCTOBER

1pm -2pm

TOPICS TO BE COVERED INCLUDE:

The distribution of housing numbers to local authorities; promoting a site through the new plan making process; what remaining opportunities will there be for unallocated greenfield developments? Will / should there still be a 5 year housing land supply test and how might it operate under the new regime? How will the new planning regime interplay with the statutory regime for protection of heritage assets?; what is the future of neighbourhood plans?; what the move away from s.106 and CIL to the new Infrastructure Levy means for viability and development finance; the future of environmental impact assessment.

Featuring a cross-disciplinary panel including Charles Banner QC (legal); Neil Tiley (housing need and supply); Gail Stoten (heritage); Andrew Cook (landscape & EIA) and David Hutchison (planning), the webinar will take the format of a round-table discussion on these and other key issues raised by the White Paper of particular relevance to those seeking to get sites through the planning system.
