Join us at the launch of the Singapore Construction Law Forum.

Building Information Modelling (BIM) and the future of construction disputes.

In discussions with government linked organisations, developers and employers, we understand BIM is coming into Southeast Asia in "a big way". This forum will provide an introduction to BIM and how it can be used in delay analysis. This forum will also highlight the commercial and contractual difficulties that BIM poses.

Hill InternationalABOUT HILL INTERNATIONAL'S CONSTRUCTION LAW FORUM

The highly successful Construction Law Forum series was launched by Hill International in the UK in 2009 to provide attendees with technical training in construction matters and enhance their understanding of technical matters. Since then, the forum has attracted audience members from international law firms based in the City of London, as well as London-based barristers and key decision-makers from Main Contractors. Guest speakers have included The Hon. Mr Justice Akenhead, Alexander Nissen QC, Sean Brannigan QC, Simon Hughes QC, Veronique Beurhlen QC and Keith Pickavance. After six years and over 25 events, it is still going strong!

ABOUT HILL INTERNATIONAL

Hill International, with 4,400 professionals in 100 offices worldwide, provides programme management, project management, construction management, construction claims and other consulting services primarily to the buildings, energy, environmental, industrial, oil &amp; gas, and transportation markets. As a pioneer of the construction claims industry, we understand what it takes to avoid expensive schedule delays and cost overruns and deliver a successful project. Our approach to project management is to minimise risk from the earliest stages of a project and to provide our clients with independent and objective guidance from concept through completion.
